

Richard Collin
MA FRCS DO

Richard Collin is a professor of ophthalmology at UCL, University of London, and a consultant surgeon at Moorfields Eye Hospital. He specialises in oculoplastic surgery and has trained a large family of fellows, both nationally and internationally. He has been past president of both the British and European Ophthalmic and Reconstructive Surgery Societies. He has written three textbooks, given over twenty named lectures and published over two hundred articles as well as various chapters on oculoplastic subject. He continues in active practice and enjoys teaching, operating and exploring new oculoplastic management regimes.